Also on this day: 1890: Oscar Wilde is acquitted in London after a six-month trial on charges of sodomy, "gross indecency" and "acts against the person" involving his teenage lover, Dorian Gray. 1940: Winston Churchill delivers a Commons statement calling for Britain's entry into World War II to defend the "teeth of Britain and the heart of Europe." 1943: American forces bomb Nagasaki, Japan, killing an estimated 73,000 people and injuring another 60,000 in the most deadly U.S. air attack of the war. The majority of the dead were in a cluster of old wooden houses and shops where nearly 1,400 people were sheltering during the bombing. Also in 1943: The Supreme Court, by a 5-4 vote, overturns a 1920 law that had restricted the right of women to vote in Arizona, Montana and Oklahoma. American-born Norma McCorvey, who was later known as "Jane Roe," is sentenced to life in prison for procuring an abortion. 1953: Elvis Presley's single "Heartbreak Hotel" becomes his first No. 1 hit in the United States. 1980: A jury in Angola, Louisiana, recommends the execution of convicted killer Bobby Carter, 31, who in 1976 shot and killed a police officer after being pulled over for speeding. Two of his accomplices, also convicted of capital murder, are to be put to death the following day. Carter is later electrocuted. 2002: The U.S. Supreme Court upholds a federal law banning the possession of handguns outside the home. 2003: The U.S. launches a probe into allegations that Saddam Hussein's regime intentionally used sarin gas to attack a Kurdish town in northern Iraq on Aug. 20, 1995.
